Terms and Conditions for NDC Digital Library Subscription

The NDC Libraries subscribe to numerous electronic journals, databases and similar resources through paid licenses. NDC has signed agreements with these publishers and distributors to comply with the terms and conditions for use of their products. Violation of these terms of use may result in loss of access to the resource and termination of contract resulting in loss to exchequer.

General Terms of Use Restrictions

Access to the electronic resources listed on the NDC Library website is restricted to members of the NDC library, and in some cases, to on-site users of NDC, for the purposes of research, teaching, and study only.

- Under NDC Library's license agreements for electronic resources, users may not allow anyone other than an authorised user to use the licensed materials.
- Modify or create a derivative work of the licensed materials without the permission of the licensor.

- Remove, obscure or modify any copyright or other proprietary notices included in the licensed materials.
- Use the licensed materials for commercial purposes.
- Systematically download, distribute, or retain substantial portions of information.

Examples of Excessive or Systematic Downloading

Here are examples of “excessive downloading”, which is prohibited:

- Rapidly downloading one article after another
- Continuously downloading tables of contents, search results, citations, or output
- Downloading entire issues or volumes of an e-journal
- Downloading the entire content of an e-book or multimedia resource
- Using robots, spiders, or other automated programs to download from online resources

Copyright

Copyright laws govern the making of photocopies and other reproductions of copyrighted materials, such as making copies of print or electronic articles for others.

Library users must respect international copyright laws and the specific terms of database providers regarding the storage and transmission of electronic information.

Consequences of Misuse of Electronic Resources

Electronic resource providers are constantly monitoring overall account activities. If a serious violation is detected coming from our campus or one of our remote users, providers reserve the right to immediately suspend access to their e-resource for the entire campus.

As such, misuse and disregard for terms and conditions of use puts at risk the Library's and all other NDC users' continued access to electronic resources.

Violations of restrictions or any other terms of use stipulated by the provider is a grave offence, and will result in the withdrawal of electronic access rights and the possible imposition of institutional sanctions.

"When using NDC Library Electronic Resources or resources owned by third parties that are accessed using NDC Library website or password authentication, Users must comply with all applicable laws and policies, and the terms of any contract or license which governs the use of the third-party resource and by which the User or the NDC is bound".

7. I have read and understood the terms and conditions of usage of physical and digital library. I will abide by the rules and follow the terms and conditions.
